HIGH SCHOOL

REMEMBRANCER

Every school day two thousand students can be seen approaching the attractive grounds of Walnut Hills High School from a number of surrounding avenues. Impressively located on a hill overlooking Victory Parkway, the school also faces Blair Avenue. Walnut Hills is widely known not only for its scholastic standards, but also for its exterior stately beauty and up-to-date facilities and equipment. Students take great pride in the spacious driveway, fine public address system, stage, gymnasium, library, and specially equipped rooms. To give its students sound academic preparation for higher training in college is the underlying purpose of Walnut Hills.

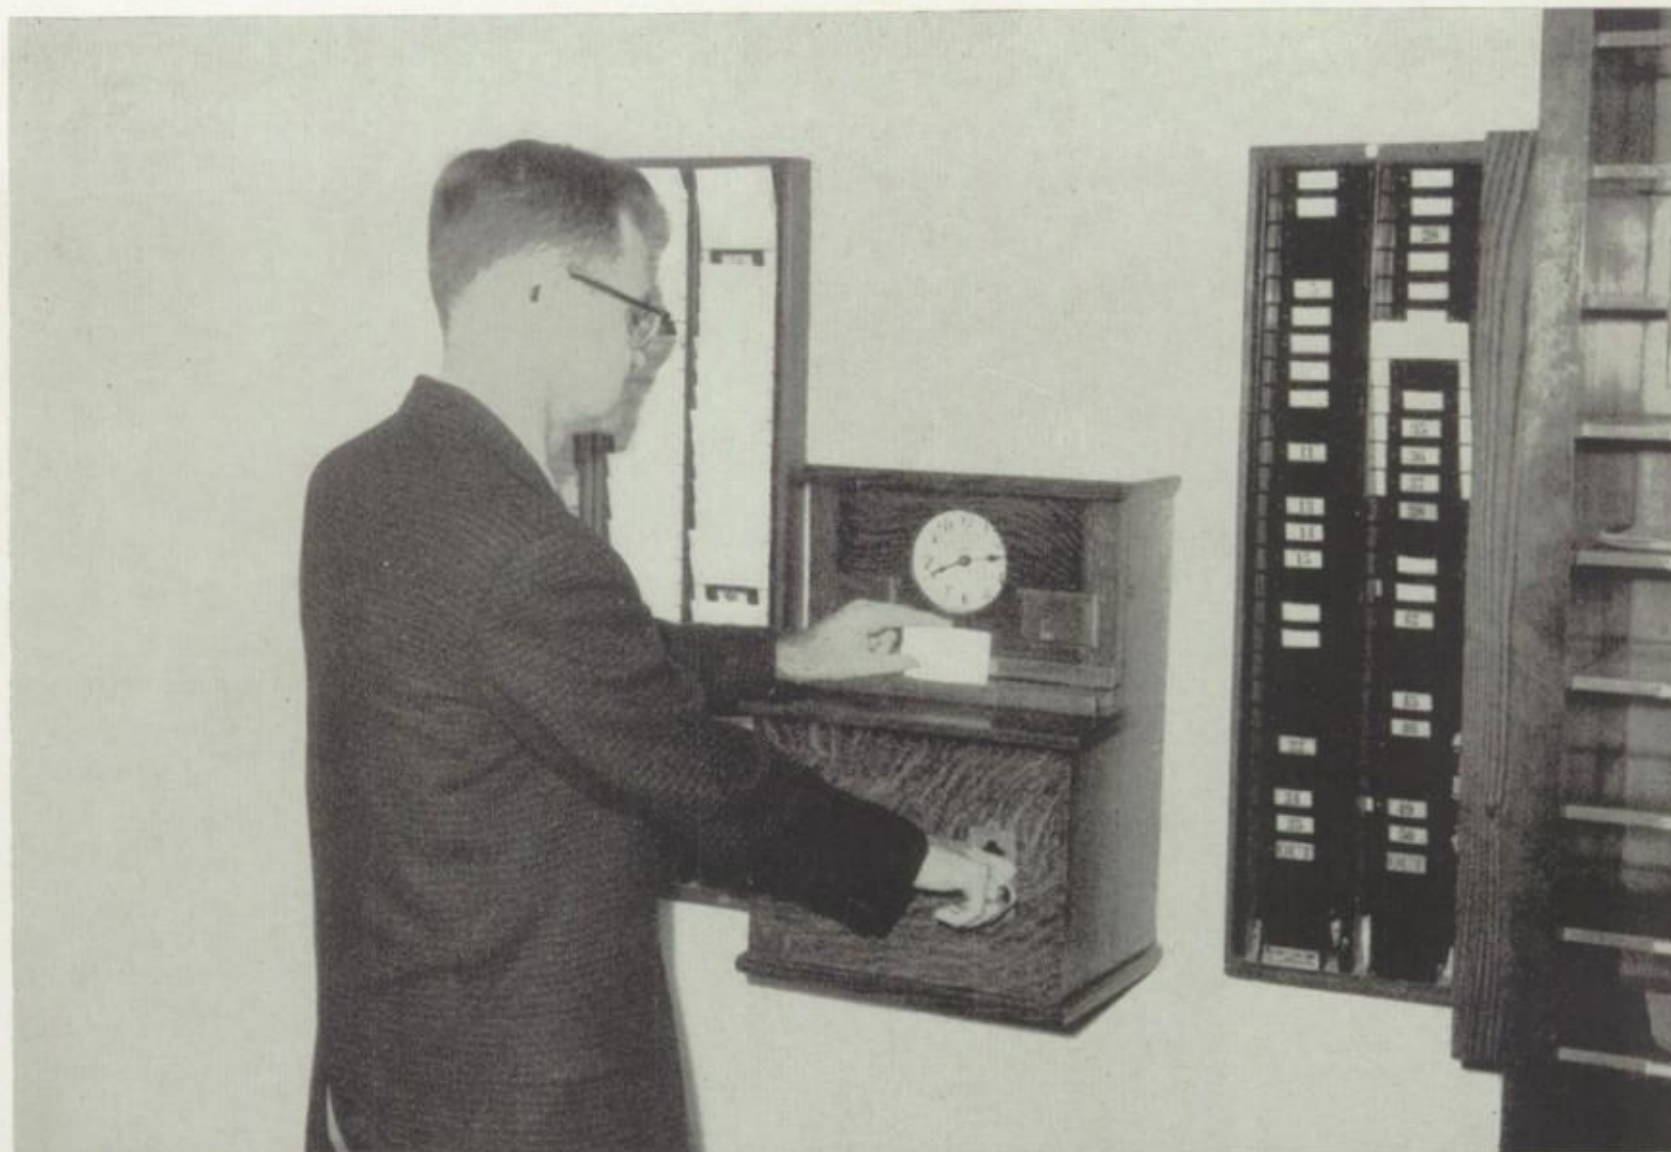

Since Walnut Hills specializes in the training of students, who will go on to higher education, emphasis is placed on the liberal arts fields. The requirements in language, mathematics, science, social studies, and the arts offer the most rewarding experiences for students with intellectual abilities. Upholding the highest of standards, Walnut Hills succeeds each year in graduating young men and women whose fundamental knowledge equals or exceeds the standards set by the colleges and universities to which they go. The school and its purposes exist, but the student body and faculty members contribute the spirit and cheerful atmosphere to Walnut Hills.

As on many other jobs, teachers must punch the time-clock at the beginning of each day.

When the report period closes, teachers can frequently be seen in the faculty lounge recording grades.

After school Walnut Hills students have time to talk to their friends on the back steps.

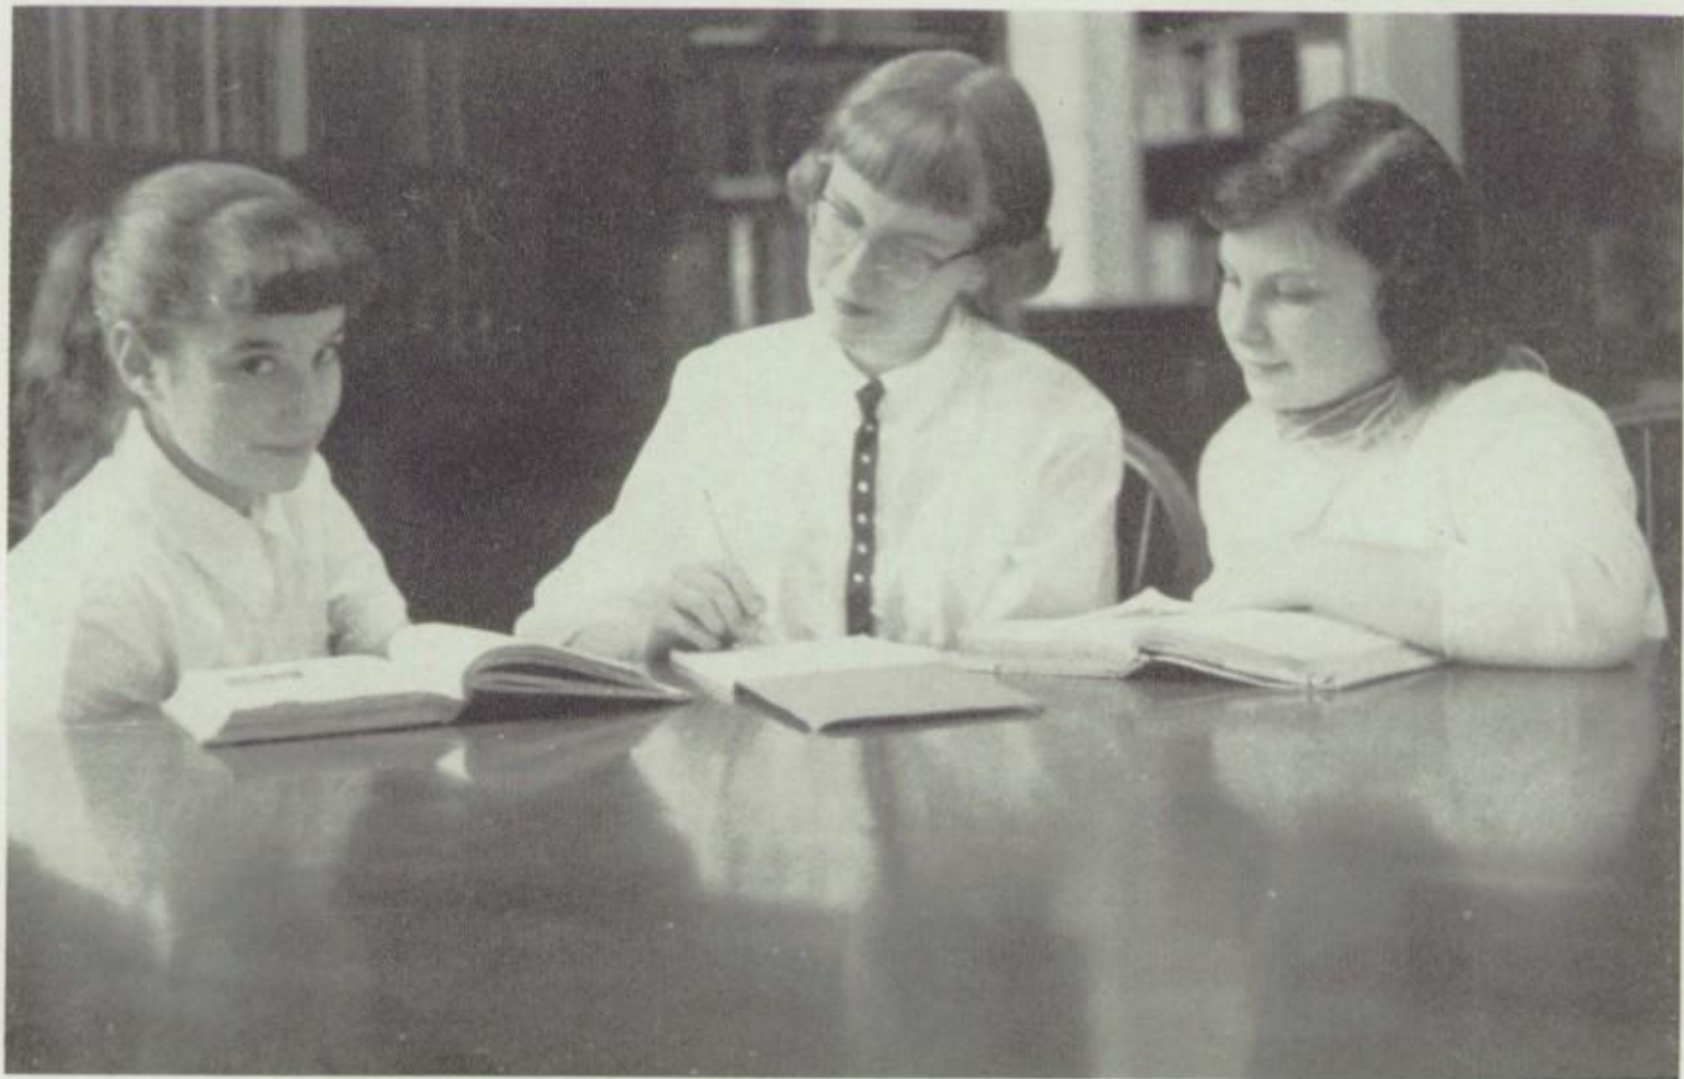

Each day at noon hungry students pass through the busy lunch lines.

Each year at the Christmas Concert the girls' triple trio and the boys' octette present their traditional arrangement of "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

Working on the annual takes up the after-school time of many upper school students.

Helping new seventh-grade girls with their studies is one of the main purposes of Big Sisters.

Football provides excitement for both the players and the spectators.

During the winter students enjoy playing or watching basketball.

THE CREW

With efficiency and cooperation the crew of our ship, the faculty and the administrators, guide the student body on a steady course, the final goal of which is a liberal and thorough education. The outstanding faculty of Walnut Hills is largely responsible for the high scholastic standing of the school and the success at college of students prepared at Walnut Hills. Devotedly and earnestly instructing their pupils, our teachers create in each student a desire and an appreciation for knowledge. In addition to their teaching responsibilities, faculty members devote much time to sponsoring extracurricular activities and counseling students in their personal and school problems. In their dual role as teachers and friends the members of our faculty have gained and maintained the respect and admiration of all students.

Principal climaxes four-year tenure

PRINCIPAL: Mr. Harold Howe II

A familiar figure about Walnut Hills since 1953, Mr. Harold Howe II has gained both respect and admiration for his many accomplishments and for his conscientiousness in supervising the administration of the school. As principal of Walnut Hills Mr. Howe made many improvements during his three year tenure. He was influential in the introduction and establishment of a new eighteen credit, four year high school program. Advanced standing courses were also instituted as part of Mr. Howe's plan to improve the scholastic standing of Walnut Hills. Finally, Mr. Howe encouraged student participation in all school functions and cooperation with student government organizations. As an outstanding civic leader Mr. Howe headed a committee which probed the juvenile delinquency problem in Cincinnati. Although he is leaving this year, Mr. Howe will long be remembered and appreciated by the student body and faculty.

Administrators, office workers insure

One of the busiest administrators of Walnut Hills High School is Mr. Howard L. Luedeke, the assistant principal. Mr. Luedeke is in charge of keeping the attendance records and the boys' discipline records. He serves as adviser to Student Court and as chairman of the committee which plans the school assemblies. As manager of the supply store, Mr. Luedeke is responsible for ordering supplies and supervising the student operation of the store. Another one of his duties is to plan the procedure for the lunch hour, fire drills, and air raid drills. He also informs teachers about faculty meetings and various school events. Above all else, Mr. Luedeke assists Mr. Howe in keeping the school running smoothly by establishing and maintaining good student-teacher relationships.

Changing from an elementary school to a large high school is a big step for seventh graders. One of the goals of Miss Victoria Manoukian, lower school counselor, is to help these youngsters adjust to academic and social life at Walnut Hills. In addition to planning and sponsoring activities and events for lower school students, Miss Manoukian acts as faculty adviser to Junior Student Council. Counselor for upper school boys is Mr. Carl O. Peets. Junior and senior boys consult him about colleges and scholarships. Much of Mr. Peets' time is devoted to filling out college transcripts for senior boys. He also helps students who are interested in part-time and summer work to find jobs. Besides these duties, Mr. Peets is adviser to Student Council and Big Brothers.

DEAN OF GIRLS: Miss Olive M. Clarke

Miss Olive M. Clarke fulfills a variety of responsibilities as dean of girls at Walnut Hills. For many years she has helped girls to solve not only such school problems as planning programs and maintaining good grades, but also the problems that arise outside of school. Senior girls are grateful to Miss Clarke for her advice and help in choosing suitable colleges. With the help of her council, composed of five senior girls, Miss Clarke sponsors student aid and Big Sisters, selects girls to usher for various occasions, and solicits workers to help with charity campaigns. She also acts as hostess for numerous college representatives and other guests of the school. As girls look back over their years at Walnut Hills, they remember Miss Clarke as a faithful friend and adviser.

There are several behind-the-scene workers who perform countless services which are necessary for the efficient operation of Walnut Hills. Miss Shigley, Mrs. Ewald, Mrs. Bonner, and Miss Shaw perform the many secretarial and bookkeeping duties in the administrative offices, while Mrs. Abravaya, the treasurer, handles the finances.

English students communicate ideas

Proficiency in grammar, skill in composition, and comprehension in reading are the main objectives of the English course at Walnut Hills. Students who follow the traditional curricular read and discuss such classics as Robinson Crusoe, Johnny Tremain, A Midsummer Night's Dream, The Yearling, My Antonia, and The Scarlet Letter. Seniors selected for the advanced standing program analyze works of such eminent authors as Emerson, Thoreau, Eliot, Hemingway, and Joyce. All English courses offer valuable instruction in the various forms of composition—expository, argumentative, narrative, and descriptive. For the first time junior and senior classes studied informative articles appearing in the Atlantic Monthly. Through writing, speaking, and reading good English the student becomes well-versed in the art of communication.

Speech, journalism stress originality

In addition to preparing students for participation in school productions, speech classes help students acquire self-confidence and poise in public and every-day speaking. Any student who wants to take speech may elect a two and one half period a week course, while juniors and seniors who have completed two years of speech and have passed an oral exam may qualify for special speech. Special speech students study the history of drama. The advanced speech class also presents an annual program on Thanksgiving, and an assembly in the spring. Journalism students not only learn to distinguish between the various methods of writing but also have an opportunity to practice using these skills. The training which the students get in writing various types of articles, together with instruction in copy-reading and headline writing, prepare journalism pupils for publication work.

At Walnut Hills a complete six-year Latin program is offered, the first three years of which are compulsory. Seventh and eighth graders learn the basic grammar of the language and build up a Latin vocabulary. Ninth graders begin the study of Caesar's "Gallic Wars" with the translation of the famous line: Gallia est omnis divisa in partes tres." In the tenth and eleventh grades students read the immortal works of Cicero and Virgil. Virgil and Horace are studied by pupils taking the honors course, Latin 12 VI. This extensive Latin program aids students beginning courses in Romance languages, and provides an excellent account of the ancient Roman civilization.

As the United States comes in closer contact with foreign nations, the ability to converse in the modern languages gains a new and deeper meaning. In recent years, because of the growing interest in science and medicine, the number of German students has increased. A closer relationship with our neighbors in the southern hemisphere has made Spanish more important. French, the official language of the United Nations, has become a necessity for those planning to enter the field of political science. Modern language students study the grammar and vocabulary of the language and at the same time learn the customs and histories of the various countries.

Mathematics develops clear thinking

The experiment in advanced standing mathematics courses has proved a success. This year the first class to undertake the comprehensive program completed four years of math in only three years. At the end of their senior year advanced pupils take an examination to determine their standing at college. Students taking mathematics courses can recall the conversion from fractions to decimals in seventh and eighth grade classes, the never-ending list of theorems and postulates in solid and plane geometry, and the numerous series of sines, cosines, and tangents in trigonometry. A student who has studied mathematics at Walnut Hills is prepared for the future. Even if he does not continue with mathematics in college, the accurate work habits which he acquired in high school will benefit him in other fields.

Opportunities for scientists increase

To keep up with the nation-wide emphasis on scientific careers, the science department has expanded its curriculum this year. The most significant change is the introduction of a general science course required of all eighth graders. Through this course, the young student not only is given an opportunity to develop an interest in science, but also is provided with a background for the sciences which he will study in the upper grades. Another addition is the requirement that all graduates must have credit for at least one physical and one biological science. This year the advanced standing chemistry course was expanded to seven and one half periods a week. In addition to preparing some students for scientific careers, this varied program will provide all graduates with a practical knowledge of science.

Lower school history students learn how to use reference books in the library.

"The study of the past often reveals the key to the future." By tracing the development of older civilizations an understanding of today's international problems can be gained. Lower school pupils, in their social studies classes, become familiar with our country's past and with the history and customs of our neighbors in the Western Hemisphere. Upper school students have a variety of courses from which to choose. In addition to American history and government, which is required, they may take ancient and medieval history or modern history. Seniors may elect a course in economics and sociology in which they analyze problems of our modern society.

Arts accent practical, cultural study

Art and music classes provide an outlet for free expression and afford students an opportunity to develop their talent. Art students learn the fundamentals of color, texture, and design. Ninth and tenth graders may take choral music, while those who are talented and interested in singing may be selected for Girls' Glee Club or A Cappella Choir. In seventh and eighth grade home economics and industrial arts classes, practical skills of cooking, sewing, and tool work are emphasized. This year, for the first time, homemaking was offered to upper school girls. Because typing is so essential in college, there is a great demand for the typing course.

Art students work diligently on various projects.

The library provides a relaxing break in the school routine.

Seniors and sophomores take a two and one half period a week health course for one semester, and during the remaining half of the year they participate in gym and swimming classes. Health I, the sophomore course, includes driver education and first aid. Family and social problems are discussed by seniors in their Health II classes. The rest of the students take gym and swimming for the entire year, although swimming is optional. The physical educational program, which is supplemented by extra-curricular activities, is designed to instill a competitive spirit in each individual.

Student volunteer workers assist in the operation of two of the school's most vital services—the lunchroom and the library. Each school day students and mothers help the dietitian and her efficient staff serve lunch to the student body and faculty. This year a sandwich counter was added to the four lunch lines which serve hot food. Another addition to the lunchroom was a special table for French students. Student volunteers in the library check out books and work in the stackroom. The relaxing atmosphere of the library provides a welcome change from the school routine.

THE PASSENGERS

Students entering Walnut Hills for the first time have the same feeling of nonentity which the passengers on a ship experience at the beginning of a long voyage. Six years of learning and working together enable students not only to develop their individual personalities, but also to establish life-long friendships. By participating in extracurricular activities, cooperating in class efforts and projects, and contributing to classroom discussions, each pupil is giving of himself for the benefit of the group as a whole, whether it be small, as in the case of a club, or considerably larger, as in the case of a class. At the end of the trip it is with sincere regret that students say good-bye to many of their classmates and teachers and leave Walnut Hills High School, where they have enjoyed six of the most eventful and satisfying years of their lives.

Capably leading the seniors was Pete Bear, president of the class of '57. A member of Big Brothers and Student Council, Pete also devoted much of his time to Delta Beta Social Club, Hi-Y, and the baseball team.

Serving as vice-president of the senior class, Dan Bryant was also president of Delta Beta Social Club. He participated in Big Brothers, Student Council, and Student Court. His athletic interests centered on football.

Efficient Ann Arnold carried out the duties of secretary. Ann served as a member of Miss Clarke's Senior Council and as president of Altruist and a member of Y-Teens and Chemistry Club.

Joe Schulzinger, senior class treasurer, was Gleam literary editor and social editor of the Chatterbox. The remainder of his extracurricular time was spent fulfilling the duties of a Big Brother and a member of Choir Council.

Seniors give leadership to school

SENIOR CLASS ADVISER: Mr. Richard Bourn

Their final year will long be remembered by the members of the class of '57 as an outstanding climax to their six years at Walnut Hills High School. Many seniors undertook the responsibilities of leadership in student government organizations, special-interest clubs, and social activities. Assisted by their enthusiastic adviser, Mr. Richard Bourn, the class published a senior directory and held a picnic in the country early in the fall. On Friday, December 8, and Saturday, December 9, the senior class play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois", was presented. For the first time two performances, a matinee and an evening presentation were given. The homecoming dance, a highlight of the mid-winter vacation, was planned and managed by seniors, assisted by the sophomores and juniors. At the Basketball Bounce, sponsored by the band, orchestra, and cheerleaders, a senior girl was crowned basketball queen by the captain of the team. As the second half of the year progressed, source themes, chemistry projects, and college entrance examinations presented a challenge to seniors. Then, in rapid succession, came the traditional BA Prom, the humorous Baby Day festivities, and Class Day. After the impressive graduation ceremony drew to a close, the seniors prepared to embark on their college and adult careers.

As president of the junior class, Roger Wolf showed strong leadership qualities. Besides heading the house and grounds committee of Student Council, he played basketball and tennis. He also participated in the junior play, "Lute Song."

Bob Stivers, vice-president of his class, was a member of Big Brothers, Hi-Y, and the Chatterbox sports staff. He devoted much time to his duties as secretary of BOA. He also participated in football and track.

Serving as secretary of the class of '58 was Carole Merritt. Some of her many extracurricular activities included the Girls' Athletic Association, the A Cappella Choir, and the PEANUTS personnel staff.

The Junior class treasurer, Clark Fitzmorris, was active in Physics Club, Hi-Y, and German Club. He was business manager of the PEANUTS, and performed in the horse chorus of that production. He also swam for the school team.

Junior year creates feeling of unity

JUNIOR CLASS ADVISER: Dr. Edwin H. Sauer

The spirit of unity, always present in the class of '58, grew stronger as the juniors worked together in all phases of school life. It was a year of scholastic achievement, extracurricular participation, and lasting memories. With the beginning of school came tryouts for the PEANUTS of '56. Each member of the class had an opportunity to help make the production successful. Those who were eager to act comprised the cast of the junior play, "Lute Song." Juniors were members and leaders of a variety of activities, from athletics and publications to A Cappella Choir and student government organizations. Ten junior girls were given the honor of serving as links in the traditional Daisy Chain at the graduation ceremony. The compatibility of the members of the class was shown at the closed junior dance held in February. The year's social activities were appropriately climaxed by the BA Prom, which juniors and seniors planned together. Choosing prom queen candidates, publicizing the dance, decorating the gym, and providing refreshments were a few of the many tasks undertaken jointly by the two classes. As juniors felt satisfaction and pride in their accomplishments, both as a class and as individuals, they looked to Dr. Edwin H. Sauer, the class adviser, for further encouragement and guidance.

To Martin Ellis Kahn the junior class wishes to dedicate this section of the 1957 REMEMBRANCER. Marty fought the scourge of cancer for four long years, and his struggle will never be forgotten. During his years of sickness he somehow managed to maintain outstanding grades. He also played tennis on the school's team in his freshman year and served as president of his temple youth group. In accordance with his parents' wishes two funds have been established in his memory, one by Phi Epsilon social club to raise money for the new Jewish Community Center building in Roselawn, and the other by Louis Feinberg Synagogue to assist needy religious school students. The memory of Martin Ellis Kahn, a companion and a leader, will be forever cherished by all of his classmates.

Martin Marks, president of the class of '59, maintained an honor-roll average and took advanced standing mathematics. His interest in sports was evident by his participation on the tennis and swimming teams.

The vice-president of the sophomore class, Marcia High, was treasurer of GAA, a member of Y-Teens, and a CHATTERBOX sports writer. Marcia also sang in A Cappella Choir and the WALNUTS singing chorus.

Y-Teens and GAA were the main activities of Jane Collett, secretary of the sophomore class. She was also a member of the Elementary French Club. Jane maintained a high scholastic average throughout the year.

Steve Crane proved his capabilities as class treasurer this year. In addition to taking honors math, Steve found time for swimming on the school team and for taking part in the activities of Delta Beta social club.

SOPHOMORE CLASS ADVISER: Mr. Joseph Knab

Sophomores found their first year as senior high students both eventful and enriching. Some members of the class of '59, who excelled in mathematics, were selected to take the advanced standing math course, while other sophomores, who displayed talent in music, qualified for A Cappella Choir, Senior Orchestra, or Senior Band. Many sophomores showed outstanding ability on the various school athletic teams. In contrast to routine classroom tests were the required tenth grade physical examinations. The amusing period during which many sophomores pledged social clubs was an important milestone in the lives of these tenth graders. Guided by Mr. Joseph Knab, their faculty adviser, the sophomores cooperated to provide the refreshments for the annual homecoming dance. PEANUTS directors were elected in January and plans for a stupendous production got underway shortly afterwards. The sophomores presented their first class dance to the entire school in the spring. As the tenth graders worked together on various class projects, they began to understand the importance of class unity. In looking back over the past year the members of the class of '59 could be proud of their achievements and of their progress towards accepting more of the responsibilities of Walnut Hills.

Rick Knaft assumed the duties of president of the class of '60. A great part of Rick's extracurricular time was spent in sports activities. He was an enthusiastic member of the swimming and tennis teams.

The vice-president of the freshman class, Carol Hines, was a class leader for the third consecutive time. She was a member of Junior Red Cross, Future Teachers of America, and GAA, as well as the vice-president of Junior Student Council.

Serving on Junior Student Council and playing on her class hockey team kept Bonnie Lishawa, freshman class secretary, busy. Bonnie displayed literary talent by writing for several publications, and was active in Future Teachers of America.

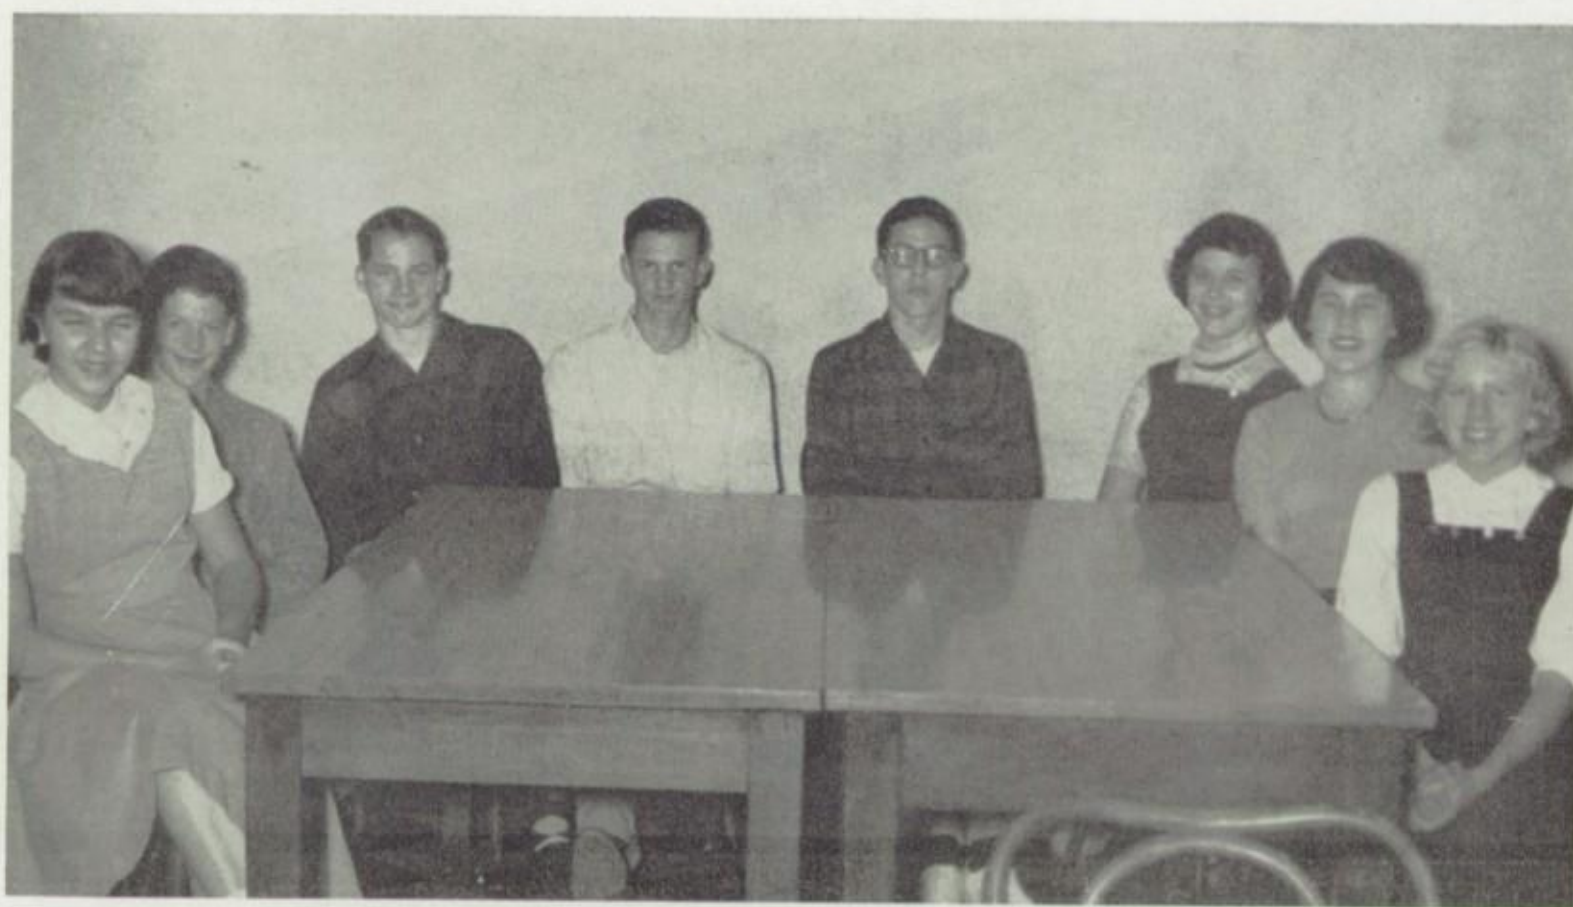

Keeping a record of the expenses of the freshman class was vivacious Judy Hilsinger. Judy participated in Senior Latin Club and GAA, where her main interest was the swimming team.

Frosh direct lower school activities

FRESHMAN CLASS ADVISER: Mr. Lloyd Bailey

Under the revised school policy the freshmen assumed the leadership of the lower school and its numerous extracurricular activities. With the expert guidance of their adviser, Mr. Lloyd Bailey, the class of 1960 met the challenge of their growing responsibilities with eagerness. Giving support and leadership to Junior Y-Teens, Junior Student Council, junior high athletic teams, and numerous other activities for lower school pupils, the members of the class of '60 were successful in bolstering the prestige and membership of many of these recently organized clubs. They also showed by their interest and participation in Girls' Athletic Association, Glee Club, and other upper school activities open to ninth graders that they were enthusiastic about the forthcoming challenge of senior high school life. Their loyalty to the class of '60 was evident when the freshmen proudly sported their newly purchased blue and gold beanies. The greater part of the preparations for the gala party for seventh, eighth, and ninth graders was undertaken by the freshmen. This supper party was held in the spring. Each freshman is now looking forward to the coming school year when he will once again join in the activity of Walnut Hills, not as an underclassman, but as a full-fledged sophomore and senior high school student.

Five majors compulsory for e-flats

EIGHTH GRADE CLASS LEADERS: Mimi Hill, Tom Bettman, Barbara Bourne, Bob Yeager.

Eighth graders, with a year of experience at Walnut Hills behind them, eagerly participated in the variety of activities available to them. An eighth grade girls' ensemble was organized this year and performed at the Christmas concert. Many e-flats were members of Junior Band and Junior Orchestra. A compulsory general science course proved to be a valuable addition to the eighth grade program of studies. Led by their class officers Mimi Hill, Tom Bettman, Barbara Bourne, and Bob Yeager, eighth graders helped plan the combined lower school dance. In the spring of the year all e-flats were faced with the problem of choosing their courses of study for the next four years.

Effies venture into new atmosphere

SEVENTH GRADE CLASS LEADERS: Tim Baetz, Regina Fisher, Judy Weinberger, Steve Miller.

Dazed, bewildered, and eager—these adjectives apply to the typical effie at Walnut Hills. Although at first the continuous maze of people, rooms, and corridors seems strange and confusing to seventh grade students, they gradually solve this problem, only to find new ones—Latin, for instance. Big Brothers and Big Sisters help these newcomers adjust to high school life, and acquaint them with the rules and traditions of Walnut Hills. Wednesday homeroom guidance periods, last lunch, and extracurricular activities become a part of the daily routine for effies. They soon become active and enthusiastic members of intramural teams, Girls' Athletic Association, Junior Y-Teens, and Junior Latin Club.

SHIP ACTIVITIES

The day of a Walnut Hills student is complete only when he has participated and shared ideas in some extracurricular activity. The well-balanced program of activities available at the school is designed to meet the needs, demands, and widely diversified interests of all senior high students. Newly established clubs which were enthusiastically supported were the Tropical Fish, Folk Song, and Jazz clubs. Through active membership in special interest clubs, student government organizations, publications, or dramatics the pupil is able to broaden his knowledge in various fields, establish new contacts, accept responsibility, and learn to cooperate with his fellow students. Although not all participants in these organizations can be leaders, many students are given the opportunity to develop qualities of effective leadership, while the others gain the valuable experience of belonging to such organizations.

"Much hope for the development of student responsibility lies in Student Council." These words, spoken by Mr. Howe at one of the meetings of council, express the primary purpose of student government at Walnut Hills. Meeting every other week, Student Council proposes possible solutions to school problems needing attention and proceeds to follow the plans of action agreed upon. The executive committee, composed of the officers and standing committee heads, meets on alternate Wednesdays. With the slogan, "let's glitter, not litter," the council started a year-long clean-up campaign. Directing the sale of student pictures, council donated most of the profits from this project to the Band for their uniform fund. Most important the members of council tried to encourage student cooperation with Student Council and Student Court. A panel explaining the purpose, projects, and organization of council was made available to homerooms.

STUDENT COURT: J. Lingle, D. Herr, J. Mayerson, D. Carlson, judge; J. Lutton, A. Richards, C. Ames, D. Bryant.

Student Court, a strong and effective student government organization at Walnut Hills, strives to enforce the policies and rules of Student Council. Student Court sessions are devoted to the trial of students accused of violating school rules of conduct and the assignment of punishment to those found guilty. To extend the power of the court over girls' discipline cases three senior girls and one junior girl were added to the eight member board. Miss Clarke's Senior Council, composed of five senior girls, appoints girls to usher for various occasions, directs the Big Sisters organization, and performs other duties for Miss Clarke.

The Big Sisters organization starts functioning at the end of the school year when each member is assigned four or five little sisters who are to enter the school for the first time in the fall. Before school opens, big sisters contact their little sisters and take them on a tour of Walnut Hills. At a welcome party given for new girls in September, entertainment is presented by the big sisters, with the president of the senior class acting as master of ceremonies. Welcoming speeches are given by the president of Big Sisters, the president of Student Council, and the counselors. Throughout the year the fifty big sisters follow the progress of their little sisters at school.

One of the Big Brothers speaks to an interested audience at the party for seventh grade boys.

One of the oldest and most useful organizations at Walnut Hills is Big Brothers. The purpose of this group is to acquaint incoming boys with Walnut Hills and what is expected of them as students of the school. Big brothers not only help their little brothers solve school problems, but also treat them to a basketball game during the winter. Two of the highlights of the school year for little brothers are the party in September and the track meet in May. Potential big brothers, who must have a 'C' average and be active in extracurricular activities, are carefully screened by a board of faculty representatives and students. At the end of the school year, fifteen sophomores and ten juniors are chosen to serve as members of this important organization.

The weekly news publication, the CHATTERBOX, keeps students informed of all school events which occur throughout the year. In addition the newspaper conducts opinion polls on such questions as the outcome of the presidential election and whether the driving age should be raised to eighteen. Through the editorial column, problems in need of correction are brought to the attention of the student body. A new social column, alternately called "The Eyes Have It," "Double Talk," and "Jest For Fun," was a popular addition to the feature page. Clever cartoons were another highlight of this year's CHATTERBOX. The CHATTERBOX, along with the REMEMBRANCER and the GLEAM sponsored the first annual "Heart Hop" in February.

Paper urges better school facilities

The GLEAM, Walnut Hills' attractive literary magazine, contains the most outstanding original articles submitted by students of all classes. Included is a special section for the contributions of seventh and eighth graders. Walnut Hills is the only public high school in the city which publishes a magazine of this kind. Appearing in the GLEAM are book reviews, short stories, poems, and other pieces of creative writing, carefully selected by the staff and Dr. Edwin H. Sauer, GLEAM adviser. By using a new duplicating process the staff was able to add more art work and illustrations to the magazine. Because the cost of publishing the GLEAM was reduced by this new process, all advertising was eliminated.

Few events at Walnut Hills are awaited with more anticipation than the distribution of the REMEMBRANCERS in June. However, the publication of an annual represents an entire year's work. The staff and sectional editors, appointed the previous June, selected their staff members in September. November ushered in the subscription drive whose motto was, "Forget me not . . . REMEMBRANCER." For the remainder of the school year the REMEMBRANCER room was a scene of perpetual activity as students pored over copy or snapped pictures of school events and organizations. The annual, designed to appeal to each student, contains photographs and explanations of all phases of life at Walnut Hills, including classes, dramatics, athletics, and extracurricular clubs. After many hours of planning and organizing by staff members together with their conscientious adviser, Mrs. Alice Gire, the 1957 yearbook, painting a lasting picture of life at Walnut Hills, was presented to its many subscribers.

April 4, 5, and 6 marked three important dates in the lives of several hundred students; for on these evenings the WALNUTS of '57 was presented. Under the direction of Mr. Gasbarro and Mrs. Murphy, a variety of acts was molded into a coordinated show which encompassed the mystery of the Orient, the glamour of Italy, and the rhythm of Latin America. The production opened with "Just One of Those Things," followed by "Lover," which was presented by the singing and precision choruses together. In the setting of the first scene, Italy, the spotlight focused on Judy Waxman singing "Three Coins in the Fountain," John Sanger playing his torrid trumpet to "Come Back to Sorrento," and Kathy Wylie leading the mixed chorus in the "Italian Street Song." The next port of call was a naval school where Mr. Gregory's skit, "Don't Go Near the Water," was presented, along with Mary Bettman's tap dance to "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers." The Far East scene was highlighted by "One Fine Day," sung by Sylvia Cooper, and the precision chorus' clever interpretation of "Oriental Polka." The final scene was presented in a Latin American atmosphere. Neil Goldenberg and Joe Schulzinger sang "South of the Border" and "Hernando's Hideaway," respectively. The grand finale, following "Babalu" and "Voodoo," was a magnificent climax to a wonderful show.

The "behind the scene" workers who make up the stage crew, light crew, and scenery painters are essential to the successful presentation of our plays and revues. The stage crew builds sets and manipulates them during the productions, while the light crew handles all electrical and audio details. Designing appropriate background is the task of the scenery painters. These technical matters of the stage are supervised by Mr. Glenn Volz. The cooperation which characterized the work of these crews during the year contributed to the final success of their efforts.

Almost as soon as a student enters the upper school, he begins to look forward to participating in his junior class variety show, the PEANUTS. This year, as always, the juniors considered their show the "best ever." Class spirit increased during the weeks of rehearsal and reached an all-time high as the curtain rose on the PEANUTS of '56. "The Johnson Rag," presented by the band, pony chorus, and singing chorus, opened the program on a lively note. Specialty acts included two vocal solos, small singing groups, and novelty dance numbers. The audience was especially amused by the traditional horse chorus, and by Pelvis Nesley, playing his "famous" guitar. The plot of the PEANUTS of '56 concerned the predicament of a Hollywood star, Gina Watalulu, who signed to do two television shows on the same night. A piano quartet, a pantomime of "I Can't Say No," and the band's rendition of "One O'clock Jump," were also featured in the Peanuts. The junior class, guided by co-directors Bev Tucker and Caroline Muster and faculty adviser Dr. Edwin H. Sauer, capably produced the entire show. With mixed emotions of happiness and sadness, the juniors sang their closing song, "Just One of Those Things."

exhibits outstanding dramatic ability

On December 7, 1956 the curtain rose on Walnut Hills' third annual classical play, Abe Lincoln in Illinois. The play, written by Robert Sherwood, portrays the life of Lincoln from the time he arrived in Illinois until he left for Washington to take over the duties of President of the United States. Marvin Gottlieb starred as Lincoln, while Sue Dye played Mary Todd, his wife. Mr. Wayne Gregory, who ably directed the production, was assisted by Glenn Volz, who designed the realistic scenery, Mr. William Gasbarro, who led the orchestra, and Miss Martha Keegan, who handled the details of makeup. The stage crews also contributed to the success of the production. After many months of patient learning of lines and long rehearsals, the senior players presented a professional performance of Sherwood's Abe Lincoln in Illinois.

The junior class revived the old Chinese theater on the Walnut Hills stage with their presentation of Lute Song on February 8 and 9. Many of the colorful oriental costumes worn by the actors were sent to the school from New York, where they were originally used in the Broadway production. The script is based on a drama written by Kao-Tong-Kia, a famous Chinese playwright. Under the capable direction of Miss Martha Keegan the junior players delighted the audience with the exaggerated dignity of the Chinese court. The excellent acting, picturesque scenery, clever staging, and realistic makeup all contributed to mold the play into an outstanding success.

The tradition of the A Cappella Choir is one of which students and faculty have long been proud. Upper school boys and girls with talent and interest in choral singing are eligible for membership in choir, which meets five periods a week and is a full credit subject. The experience and leadership of Mrs. Nelle C. Murphy and the outstanding ability of the accompanist, Richard Mendelsohn, helped make rehearsals and performances proceed smoothly.

At Christmas the choir sang a group of Yuletide carols for the Rotary Club. Their performances at the school Homecoming Assembly and evening concert were highlighted by the impressive processional. Walnut Hills and Woodward choirs, directed by Dr. Thor Johnson and accompanied by the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, sang a Christmas oratorio at Music Hall. In March the group perfected a program of sacred music, which was sung at the Hyde Park Methodist Church.

Two small vocal groups which are very much in demand are Girls' Triple Trio and Boys' Octette. The members of these two choruses are selected on the basis of voice quality, general musical ability, and leadership in A Cappella Choir. Besides performing individually at school assemblies and concerts the combined voices of Triple Trio and Octette were heard on a recording for the "Sharps and Flats" radio program and in the presentation of "'Twas the Night Before Christmas" at the Christmas Concert. The six elected members of Choir Council helped Mrs. Murphy in the selection of music to be used by choir and in the planning of repertoire for church and public engagements.

Meeting two and one half periods a week, Girls' Glee Club, formerly an extracurricular activity, was included in the curriculum. Any girl in grades ten through twelve who expressed a desire to participate in choral singing could join this group. The repertoire of Girls' Glee Club, directed by Mrs. Nelle C. Murphy, included spirituals, hymns, and musical comedy hits. The girls also had opportunities to do their own conducting. At the Evening Concert and school assemblies at Christmas, Girls' Glee Club combined with the A Cappella Choir in the singing of "The Glory of the Lord" and the "Hallelujah Chorus." The Glee Club also entertained the audience with several arrangements in the Spring Concert.

Walnut Hills students proudly cheered as the Senior Band members marched down the field and presented their colorful half-time routines at football games during the fall. The goal of the band this year was to raise money for much needed band uniforms. The slogan for the fund drive was "Be a Band Aid." Students were asked to contribute not only to the tax stamp drive, but also to the Penny-a-Day lunchroom campaign. The band, together with the Senior Orchestra, also presented an open house after a basketball game to help raise money for the uniforms. In the spring an enjoyable musical program featured a jazz concert by the band along with the Interfraternity Sing by the social clubs. The Band Council, together with Mr. William Gasbarro, governed the band and scheduled its activities. The library staff was in charge of keeping the music in order. The marked increase in the number of activities and operations undertaken by the band members have secured the band's position as a vital school organization.

The Senior Orchestra performed at most of Walnut Hills' dramatic and musical presentations. Their year's repertoire included "Daybreak" and "America the Beautiful," played at a school assembly early in the fall, and "High on the Hill," played at the homecoming assembly in December. At the Christmas Concert a brass ensemble entertained the audience with a medley of Christmas carols. "Gettysburg, 1863" was the appropriate number which the orchestra played to introduce the play, Abe Lincoln In Illinois. The orchestra shone in its numerous appearances in the Walnuts as they played such popular songs as "Beyond the Blue Horizon," "Three Coins in a Fountain," and "South of the Border." Mr. William Gasbarro, the director of the orchestra, instructed an orchestra class composed only of those students who play string instruments. In addition to this class were rehearsals held after school for the entire orchestra. For public appearances Mr. Gasbarro added as many wind and percussion instruments as were necessary for the occasion.

Through the efforts of Radio Guild, an important speech activity at Walnut Hills, an informative and clearly stated report of the news is brought to students and teachers. Newscasts are given every Tuesday and Thursday morning over the public address system. Only seniors are eligible for Radio Guild during the first semester, but juniors may also participate during the last half of the year. In the spring a contest is held in which students determine by their vote the best Radio Guild announcer.

Top students enter honor societies

At Walnut Hills the highest distinction for outstanding scholastic achievement is initiation into the national Cum Laude Society. This honorary association recognizes at mid-term seniors who have an average of 3.5. Other pupils who maintain a 3.25 average through the fifth grading period of their senior year qualify for membership at this time. In the spring a banquet is held in honor of Cum Laude members.

Quill and Scroll, the international honorary society for deserving high school journalists, was organized for the purpose of encouraging and rewarding individual achievement in journalism. Walnut Hills students meeting basic requirements are awarded membership to the society by a committee of faculty members. To qualify for Quill and Scroll a student must maintain a 'B' average and work two years on a school publication.

Philanthropic activities of Y-Teens squads included the sale of candy apples in order to buy toys for the "neediest kids of all" at Christmas, and entertaining at Hillcrest, a home for delinquent girls. A social worker and a director of Y-Teens activities in Brazil were two speakers featured at Y-Teens monthly business meetings. Hi-Y sent two representatives this year to the annual Youth and Government Convention in Columbus. In the spring Y-Teens presented their annual style show, while the Hi-Y boys cooperated to present the All Sports Banquet.

During a period of conflict and confusion, when the destiny of man is uncertain, it is essential that people comprehend the complicated events which are occurring around the globe. Current History Club has tried to fulfill this need by devoting the last part of each meeting to a question and answer period, which enables the speaker to share ideas and opinions with the club members. The executive board, guided by Miss Dunphy, has tried to vary the programs to interest nearly one hundred members. Many issues, including the pressing problem of desegregation and the vital conflict in the Middle East, were carefully considered and discussed this year.

The Walnut Hills Debate Team climaxed a successful year by coping the city and district championships. The topic for this year's debates was: should the Federal Government sustain the prices of major agricultural crops at not less than 90% of parity? Members of the club divided into teams consisting of two regulars and one alternate. During the first semester debaters engaged in practice debates with other schools belonging to the Greater Cincinnati Speech League. The contests were held at St. Xavier High School. The second semester was devoted to tournament competition. The Debate Club members sponsored the annual town meeting assembly and formed panels which were available for homeroom guidance periods.

Because of the enthusiasm for French on the part of first year students, a French I Club was organized, largely through the efforts of Mr. Barron Wilson. Although their French vocabularies were limited, the members of the club enjoyed learning elementary French songs and games. At one meeting movies of France were shown, and at another session skits were presented by members of the upper school French Club. The club met every other Wednesday. To give French students practice in speaking and understanding the language the club sponsored a table in the lunchroom exclusively for those who wanted to converse in French.

Creating a situation in which students may converse in French and hear the language spoken, French Club meetings broadened the members' perspective of France—her customs and her people. At the meetings of Le Cercle Francais, conducted entirely in French, plays and dialogues were presented, French games were played, and movies were shown. At Latin Club meetings, students delved into the fascinating history of the Roman civilization. The meetings were conducted alternately by the seniors, juniors, and sophomores. At one session of the club the juniors presented an original skit, and at another meeting Miss Pelton related to the members her experiences during her year of study in Greece and Rome.

Through the carefully planned programs of Chemistry Club, students were exposed to various aspects of chemistry other than those which were emphasized in the classroom. At several meetings of the club speakers were featured who introduced to the members such fields as histology, the chemistry of the paint industry, the chemistry of sanitation, and the uses of radiation in measuring liquids. Sometimes speakers showed slides to illustrate their subjects. At other meetings interesting experiments were performed by chemistry students. This year an executive committee was organized to procure programs for meetings. Another innovation was the holding of monthly meetings in the chemistry room to facilitate experiments and demonstrations.

Physics Club, under the guidance of Dr. Ray Lambert, offered its members informative talks and programs, given by both Walnut Hills students and well-known local scientists. At monthly meetings of the club many new scientific ideas and theories were explained and demonstrated. "Newtonian Physics," a talk given by Mr. Armand Knoblaugh, was one of the outstanding programs of the year. At another interesting meeting the problems of space flight were discussed, and the construction of the earth satellites was explained. Members of the Visual Aids Corps, with Mr. Thomas Welsh as their adviser, learned about the mechanism and operation of the slide and movie projectors. The members of the corps were responsible for showing the many slides and film strips provided by the Board of Education, and for maintaining visual aids equipment.

The Jazz Club and the Radio Club are concerned with diverse mediums of communication. At "jam" sessions, held twice a month, Jazz Club members discussed the history and various phases of jazz and listened to recordings of jazz music. The Radio Club, a comparatively old organization, was designed to further its members' knowledge of radio, and prepare students interested in entering professions in this field. The radio enthusiasts operated their own short wave station and shared with each other information on the radio theory and the morse code in preparation for the Federal Communications Commission amateur license examination. Dr. Ray Lambert guided the activities of the Radio Club, while Dr. Edwin H. Sauer, a jazz man himself, was the faculty adviser to the Jazz Club.

Coordinating the activities of the twenty social clubs which have chapters at Walnut Hills is the job of the Interfraternity Council. The representative from each social club in this organization is the highest ranking officer attending Walnut Hills. Meeting once a month to exchange ideas and plans, the council also regulates all rushing and pledging procedures. All tentative dates for social functions of each club must first be approved by the Interfraternity Council adviser, Mr. Raymond Farnham, who then plans the activities calendar in cooperation with a member of Student Council. Together with the band the council sponsored the Interfraternity Sing, at which all social clubs competed for the trophy for the most outstanding performance.

The group had an open house in the spring. Students enrolled in the five period a week class in special arts and crafts may join Senior Crafters Club. They also published a news letter, "The Tro-pi-so." Printed in this letter was general information about all kinds of marine life. The majorettes were chosen by the Band Council and Mr. William Gasbarro on the basis of personality and ability to twirl a baton and dance. Rehearsing with the band every day during the fall, the majorettes took the lead in the colorful half-time show at football games. Constant practice enabled the girls to perform extraordinary feats, one of which was the twirling of a baton of fire. In the spring they gave baton-twirling lessons to aspiring majorettes.

Although each student individually cannot excel in sports, everyone can share in the thrill of a touchdown or the excitement of an overtime period. Directed by the cheerleaders, students are inspired to encourage our teams to victory. Varsity cheerleaders adopted several new ideas for pep rallies and cheering techniques which were introduced at a city-wide cheerleaders' clinic. Ninth and tenth grade cheerleaders kept the school spirit alive at reserve contests.

JUNIOR HIGH ACTIVITIES

Concentrated effort was directed this year toward the organization and expansion of an effective lower school program of extracurricular activities. The wide scope of after school activities proved to be worthwhile, for the various clubs were enthusiastically supported by the majority of seventh, eighth, and ninth graders. In the music field Junior Band, Junior Orchestra, and Seventh Grade Girls' Glee Club presented opportunities to junior high pupils. The Girls' Athletic Association and boys' intramural sports programs were perhaps the most popular activities among lower school students. Many boys and girls were also active participants in such organizations as Junior Y-Teens, Junior Latin Club, and Junior Arts and Crafts Club.

Junior Student Council was enlarged this year to include freshman representatives. With Mr. Harold Buxton as faculty adviser the council discussed possible solutions for many vital problems relating to the junior high and the school in general. Selling book covers enabled Junior Student Council to contribute funds for the purchase of water coolers. The council also planned the lower school Valentine Hop.

In its second year of existence Junior Y-Teens continued to contribute services to the community. Under the guidance of Miss Victoria Manoukian, Junior Y-Teens held monthly business meetings. At one of these meetings the president of Senior Y-Teens related to the girls her experiences at national Y-Teens conventions in Washington and New York. The squads of the organization made yarn dolls for the Children's Convalescent Home and tray favors for hospitals at Easter.

Preparing seventh, eighth, and ninth grade musicians for membership in Senior Band is one of the purposes of the Junior Band, directed by Mr. William Gasbarro. Any lower school student may take this course provided he has had one year of instrumental instruction. The council of this organization consists of a president, vice-president, secretary, and a representative from each grade. Junior Band participated in Band Recognition Night and the Spring Concert, playing such favorites as "I Believe," "To Music," and "The New Yorker."

Music groups perform at concerts

Several choral groups make up an important part of the lower school program of activities. The combined voices of the sixty-three girls in the Seventh Grade Girls' Glee Club were heard at the Christmas Concert. The Eighth Grade Girls' Ensemble also performed at the December concert. Twelve boys and twelve girls were members of the Seventh Grade Boys' Ensemble and the Seventh Grade Girls' Ensemble. CONFLICT

Whether playing on the field or court, sitting on the bench, or cheering from the stands, students at Walnut Hills support their school's sports activities. A well-organized boys' sports program offers team and individual play in many sports, including football, basketball, bowling, swimming, track, golf, baseball, and tennis. Through participation on one of the many Eagle teams, varsity, reserve, or junior high, a boy is made aware of the importance of sportsmanship and team cooperation. Many boys belong to intramural teams which represent nearly every lower school homeroom. Although no Eagle team dominated PHSL play, this season's overall sports showing was one of the best in Walnut Hills' history, both in the victory column and in student spirit. The Eagle football and basketball teams finished third in the league standings, while the cross country and swimming squads entered state competition.

A season's record of four wins, five losses, and one tie does not tell the complete story of the 1956 Eagle football team. The gridders, captained by Frank Pinder and coached by Harry Hannum, rallied after a disastrous start to win four out of their last six games and take a third place position in the PHSL standings. Because of their failure to function as a unit the team started the season slowly, losing their first three games to Lockland, Hamilton Catholic, and Norwood. In their first league encounter the Eagle squad was overpowered by Western Hills. Playing top-notch ball the Eagles defeated the Tigers of Withrow for their first taste of victory. Fired up by their triumph over the Tigers, the team succeeded in trouncing Woodward and Hughes. The Blue-Gold next made one of their poorest showings of the season, as they were held to a tie by the Taft Senators. After walloping the Reading Blue Devils in an interleague contest, the Eagles met the Knights of Central in a battle for second place. The Eagles fell, thus finishing the season with a league record of three wins, two defeats, and one tie.

Giving lower school boys instruction in effective playing techniques and strategy of football was the chief goal of Bill Lunsford, newly appointed coach of the junior high team. Freshmen boys, after playing on the lower school team, were prepared for reserve and varsity competition. The main objective of the reserve football program was to train sophomore and junior boys who will bolster next year's varsity team. To give reserves practice and experience, scrimmages between the varsity and reserve squads were scheduled. In intra-school competition the reserves, coached by Lloyd Bailey, compiled an impressive record, dropping only one contest.

Distancemen finish twelfth in state

Michael Stavole, newly appointed coach of the cross country team, established a rigorous training schedule for his runners. To replace the facilities of Avon Fields he mapped out a practice course over the school grounds. Glen Cornett, the captain of the team, won every league meet and placed well in district and state competition. Paced by Cornett, Phil Hagner, Bill Obenshain, Mike Weisbach, and Dick Hendricks, the team took second place in both the city and district meets, losing only to Hughes. The harriers ended a very successful season by finishing twelfth in state competition and outrunning Hughes.

Paced by high scoring Bob Kramer, the Walnut Hills quintet under Coach Bill Meredith compiled a respectable basketball record this season. In league play the Eagles finished third with a six won, six lost record, which upset the prophecies of many basketball experts. Outside the Public High School League the team was not as successful, losing all six titles to Roger Bacon, Purcell, Elder, Norwood, St. Xavier, and Anderson. Most encouraging to Eagle fans was the tremendous finish of the team. Victorious in four out of their last six games, the Eagles' only defeats were at the hands of league-leaders Taft and Roger Bacon. In the final contests captain Bob Kramer scored at the rate of twenty-five points per game, thus increasing his season's average to twenty-one points, and gaining a place on the All-City Second Team. Neil Goldberg, leading the squad in rebounding, finished second to Kramer in individual scoring. In district competition Walnut Hills bowed out early, losing to powerful Norwood.

The Walnut Hills varsity swimming team, long the nemesis of PHSL competition, had only a mediocre season this year. However the team, coached by "Whitey" Davis, swam to a second place finish in the district and qualified several individual stars for the state meet held in Columbus. The record-setting medley relay team, including Bob Pendergrass, Bill Howard, Laird Blue, and Hugh Frost, also advanced to state competition. This year's team was captained by Laird Blue and Bob Chapman.

Led by co-captains Rick Knauff and Chris Gilson, the junior high swimming team was able to improve last year's third place finish. In public high school league competition the junior mermen, coached by "Whitey" Davis, were edged by Withrow for first place. The district meet found the junior swimmers once again in second place, trailing the Withrow squad. The boys on the lower school team gained valuable experience in competitive swimming which prepared them for positions on the varsity squad.

The competition for positions on the varsity tennis team was almost as great as the competition in this year's public high school league race. Because of the great interest and ability shown by the sophomores, varsity positions were changed constantly throughout the year. Nevertheless the Eagles, led by Roger Wolf, Al Rosenberg, and Ed Yeghaiyan, captured the league title, and with the aid of Dean Giacometti's fine direction, finished high in district competition.

Trackmen hurdle league competition

Before the beginning of the meet the mile relay team, Clay Atkins, Ted Guberman, Mike Weisbach, and Clarence Lowe, works out.

The track team, coached by Michael Stavole, made an outstanding showing at every meet. The team attributed much of its success to returning lettermen and to the expert conditioning which coach Stavole demanded. Running the sprinting and hurdling races were Larry Cox and Clarence Lowe, while Frank Pinder and Dan Bryant showed their prowess in sprinting and jumping events. Senior lettermen Phil Hagner and Glen Cornett picked up many points in distance events.

Varsity nine make excellent showing

Lloyd Bailey enjoyed a successful year as coach of the Walnut Hills varsity baseball team. Under his tutelage the corps of returning lettermen and the new players were molded into a well balanced team. The Eagles met every contender in the PHSL twice and, aided by timely hitting, smooth fielding, and steady pitching, gave a good account of themselves in every game. In addition to league competition the Eagles also encountered many non-league foes during the season and the district tournament.

Coach Carl Varrelmann promised that the bowling team would be a top contender next year. The consistently low scores achieved by co-captains Dave Hall and Duane Fink led the golfers to a successful season. With Harry Hannum as coach, the golfers, though hampered by the loss of two lettermen, showed definite improvement.

Promoting sportsmanship and friendship is the main objective of the Girls' Athletic Association, which sponsors extracurricular sports activities for all girls from effies to seniors. Through participation in after school sports, many girls not only master athletic skills, but also find a form of relaxation after the day's classes. The association offers a wide variety of seasonal sports including hockey, soccer, basketball, softball, tennis, volleyball, and badminton. An after school swimming program is supported throughout the year. After a girl has gone out for the required number of practices in any sport, she may play in intramural competition and then is eligible for her class team and the city playday.

Walnut Hills girls make a goal in the GAA hockey playday.

An executive board, composed of girls elected from each class, regulates and schedules the activities of Girls' Athletic Association. Each board member is responsible for organizing the practices and games of a specific sport. The board plans the association's two outstanding events, the Spring and Fall Banquets. On these two occasions girls who have succeeded in earning the required number of points are awarded numerals, chevrons, and bracelets. The highlight of the Spring Banquet is the presentation of the GAA ring to the most outstanding senior member.

Hockey, the active field sport enjoyed by upper school girls, is played throughout the fall season. The popularity of the sport is demonstrated by the great number of GAA members who participate in the practices and intramural games. Lower school girls were equally enthusiastic about their fall sport, soccer. Since the game is new to seventh graders, by participating with eighth and ninth graders in the after school program, the effies learn such skills as guarding and passing.

With the arrival of cold days girls' sports enthusiasts turn to volleyball. This sport is not limited to gym classes; for many girls participate in GAA practices and games after school. Having completed the required number of practices a girl becomes eligible for intramural, class, and playday competition. The senior class won the upper school championship, while the eighth grade was victorious in the lower school. On volleyball city playday the senior high girls tied for fourth place.

Through the GAA basketball program the importance of teamwork and skillful ball handling are stressed. Having participated in a specified number of practices, a girl is then eligible for a position on an intramural team. From the intramural squads outstanding players are selected to play on their class teams, which compete for the championship.

Girls' teams compete in swim meets

The swimmers who placed in the mass meet are, on the edge of the pool, J. Frieder, L. Blubaugh, N. Mandlove, B. McGowan. Those on the board are M. L. Reul, J. Ware, D. Lockwood, S. Slon, C. Schwartz.

Girls taking weekly swimming instruction are eligible to swim on the team, which is divided into upper and lower school sections. At a mass meet all swimmers in the individual classes, headed by their managers, compete. The top swimmers of each grade level are chosen for their class teams, and a class meet is held. Sophomore girls compiled the most points in both meets. The honor team, composed of the best performers in each event, represents Walnut Hills in the city competition.

There is also competition between classes to determine the champions of the upper and lower schools. Any GAA member can enter the singles and doubles tennis tournaments, and the winners receive trophies at the Spring Banquet. Girls on the tennis team, chosen on the basis of their tournament play, compete with tennis squads from other Cincinnati schools.

Minor sport champions win tourneys

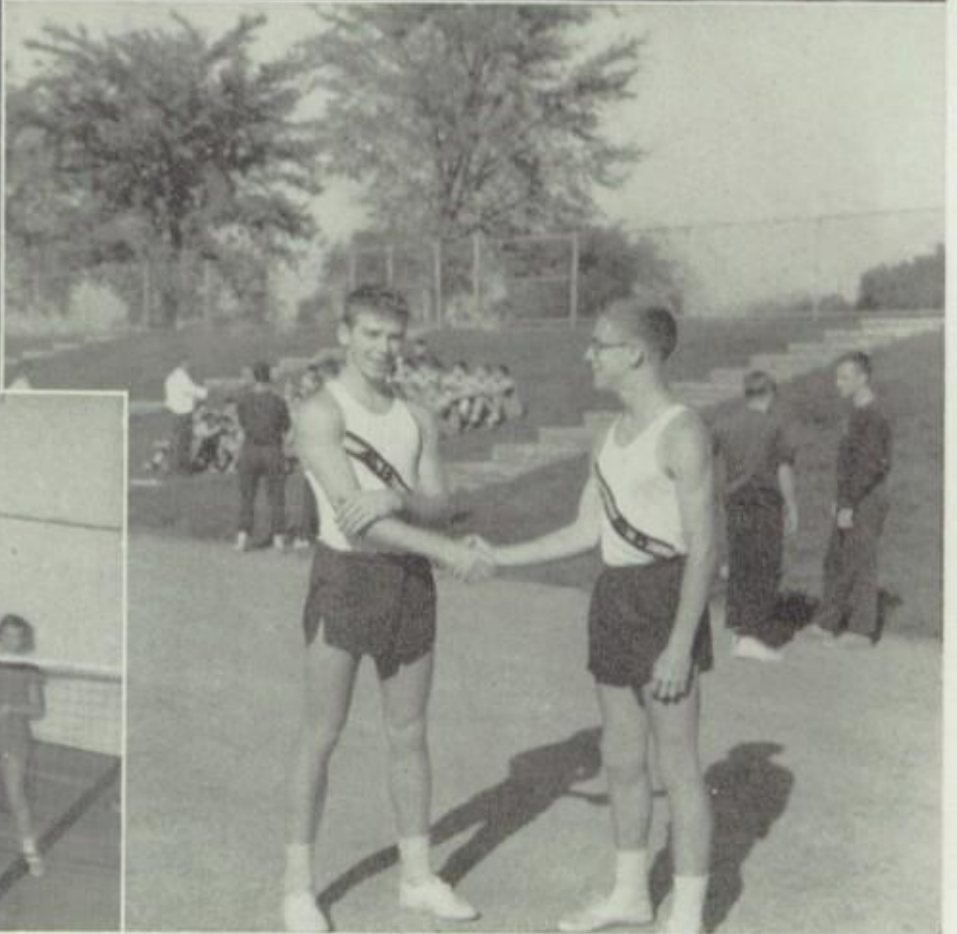

Proper form is an important requirement in archery, but hitting the bulls-eye brings more satisfaction.

These members of GAA enjoy games in badminton and ping pong, two minor winter sports.

Three individual sports sponsored by the athletic association were archery, badminton, and ping-pong. Exciting ping-pong tournaments in singles, doubles, and mixed doubles were scheduled in midwinter. At the first hint of spring the Walnut Hills archers went out with bows and arrows to practice their marksmanship. A trophy was presented to the most proficient archer at the Spring Banquet. The popular sport of badminton was also enthusiastically supported and tournaments in singles and doubles were held. Both the participants in archery and badminton competed with girls of other schools at the spring playday held in May at Lunken playfield.

Dear Members of the Class of 1957:

We, of the Walnut Hills Parents' Association, have reason to think that going to college will be easier for you, and mean more, than if you had not come here. There we expect you to go on learning more of what you learned here, from teachers and one another. You will need to know more about the past, to see the lasting contribution of its achievements and values; and more about the present, to see and interpret for yourselves what differences the growth of democracy, science, and technology make in the possibilities and problems of the modern world.

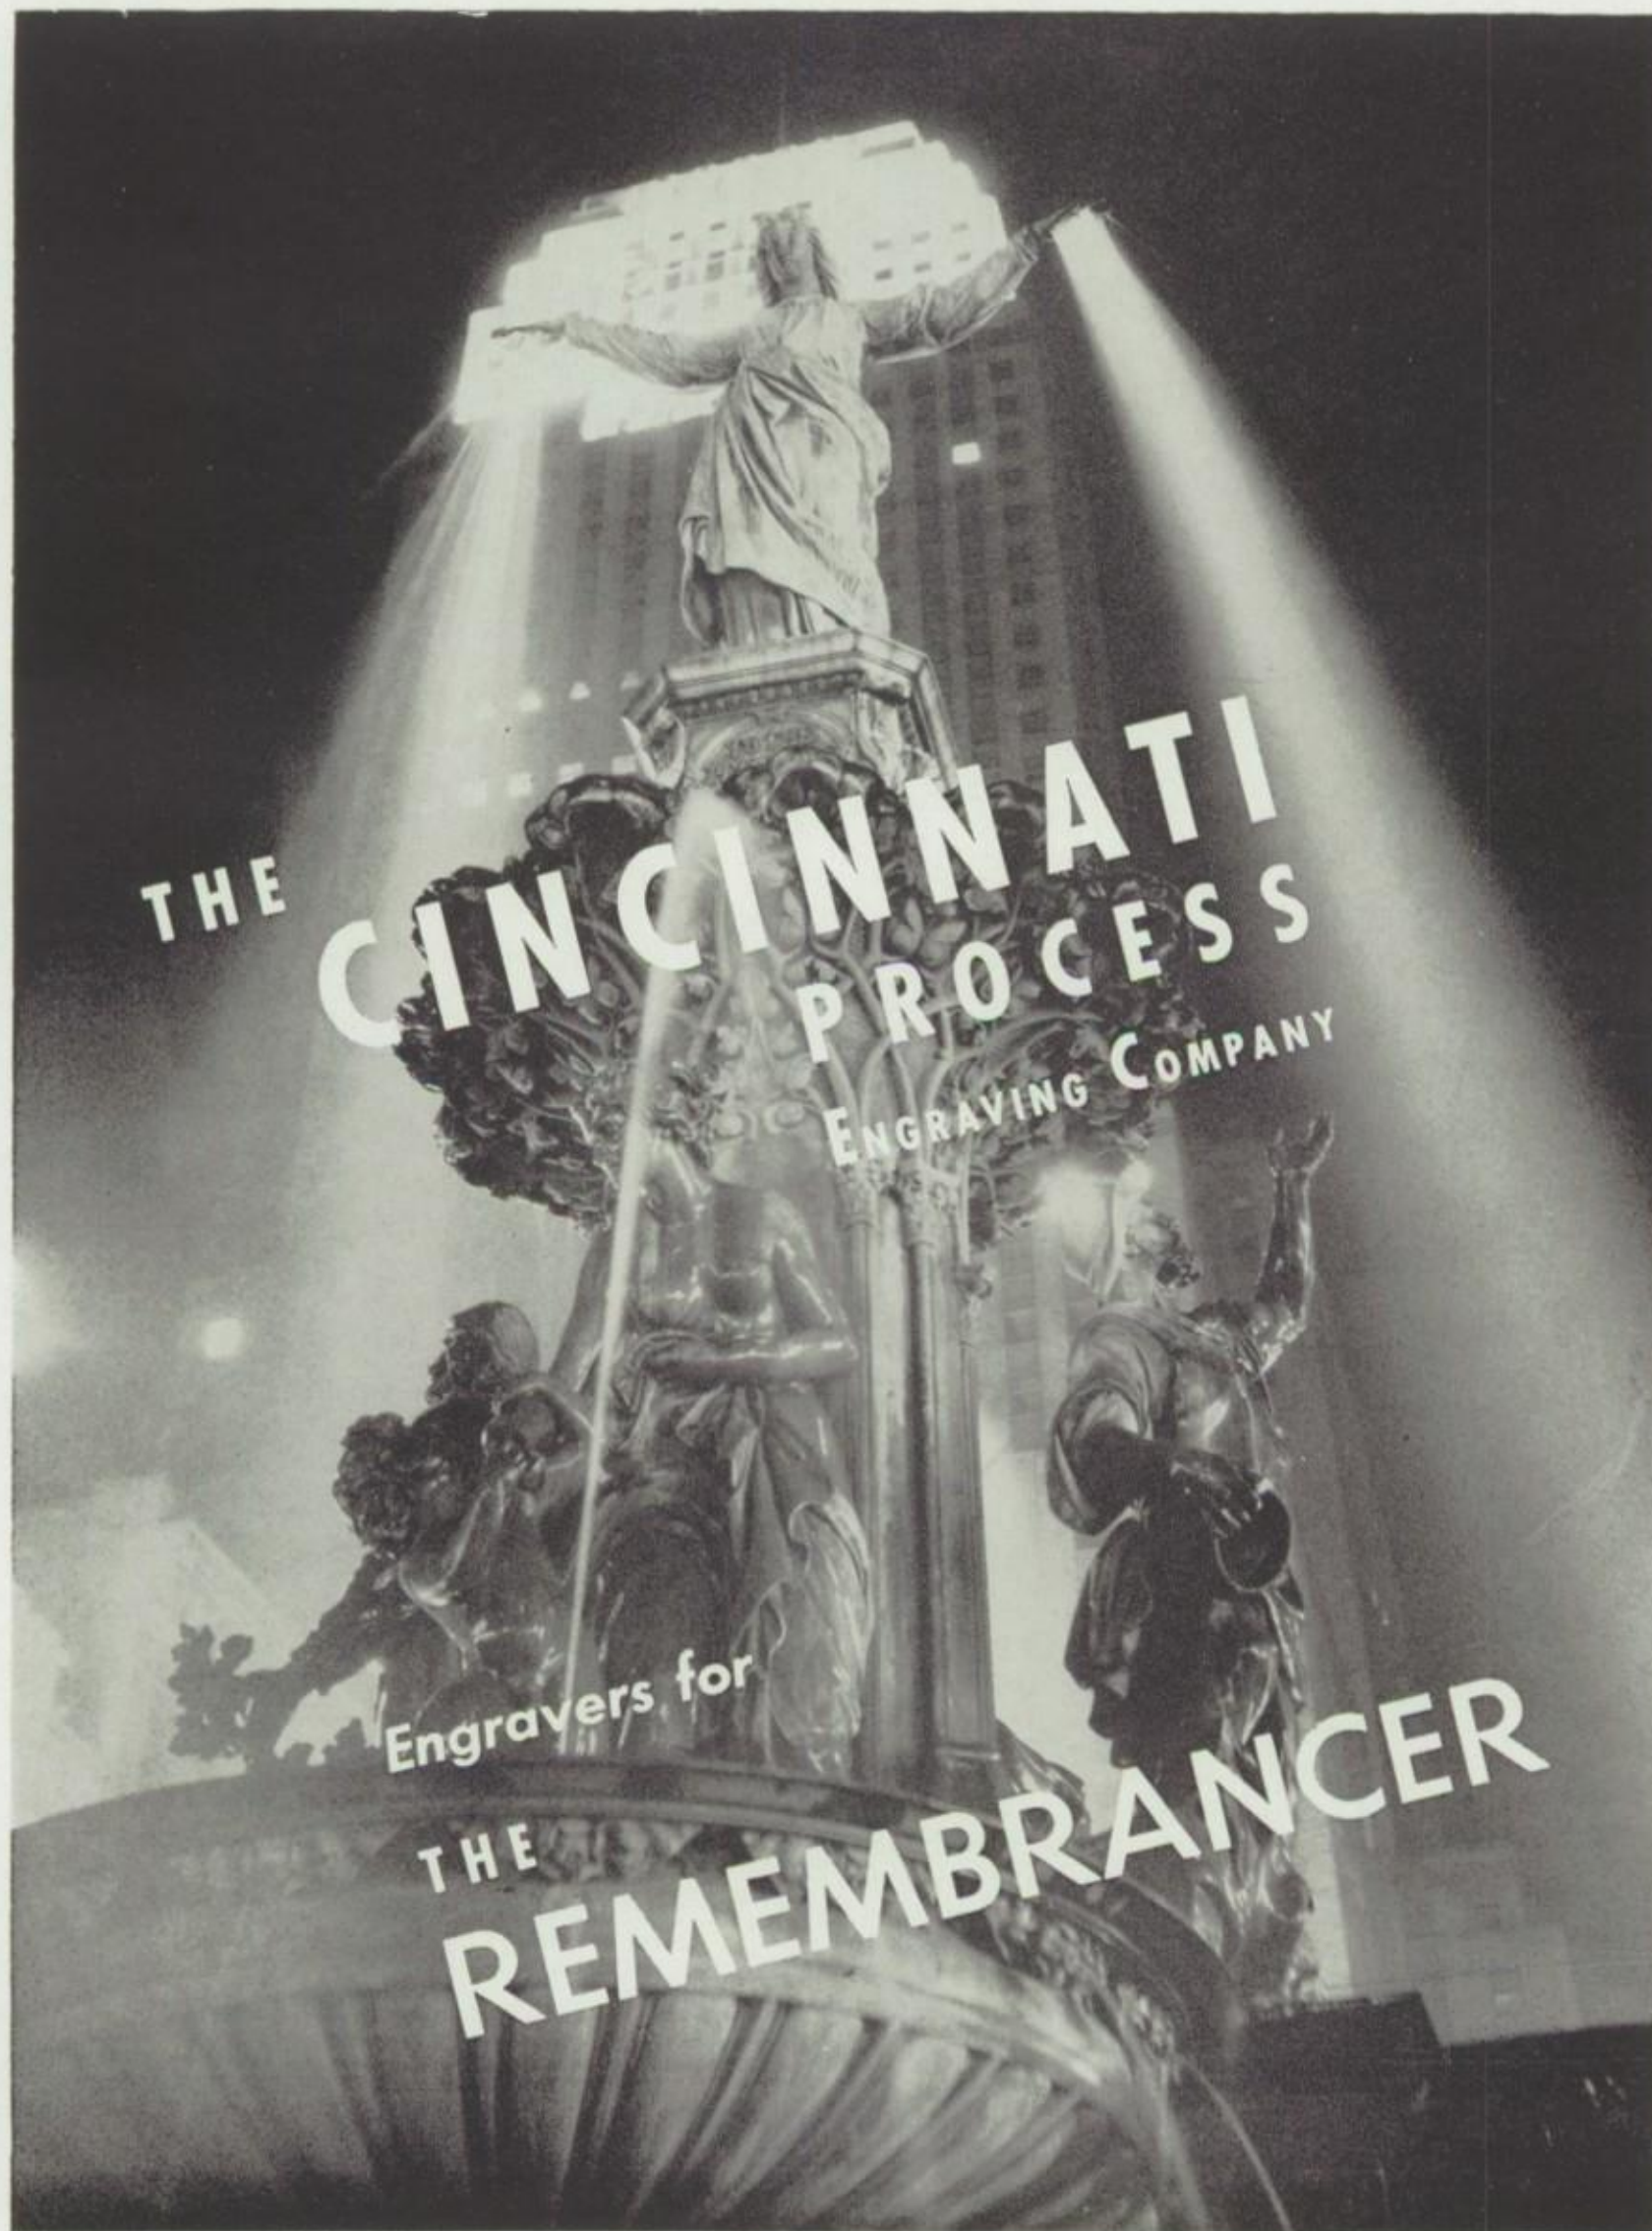

In college we expect you to learn how to think and live fully, freely, responsibly. We want you to develop your resources for enriching and enjoying your leisure, alone and with friends, by discovering the interests most rewarding to you. We count on your finding out, if you have not already done so, what kind of work each of you can do best, which will be of use to society and enable you to earn your keep. Even if you are to be employed as housewife and mother, you will have the best insurance in learning what you could do, or what further training you might take, to become a breadwinner. The years in college should also prepare you to be a more thoughtful and useful citizen of your community and your country; and make you more able to do your part for the common good, in these critical times when democratic ideals are on trial.

We believe that college will help you not only to develop in these ways but to fuse them into the character and conduct of a person who can go on growing after college, as a truly human being, whose life will be increasingly worthwhile to himself and to others. All we hope is that in college you will develop the intellectual, moral, and imaginative qualities to launch you beyond any "narrow routine of material comfort," as Whitehead puts it, into appreciation of the "variousness of the universe," with a zest for living that will carry you through all perils, into truly satisfying purposes.

Sincerely,

Walnut Hills High School Association

We senior girls of the '57 class
 Leave this advise before we pass
 We wish to say a word to you all
 Concerning your year this coming fall
 Perhaps you are thinking your day won't come
 Happy for many; sad for some
 But take it from us, your days are few
 In no time at all you, too, will be through
 Take care you don't waste those last precious days
 How fast they can fly in so many ways
 Have fun at your dances, your shows, and each sport
 Enjoy them now, your time is so short
 We remember our Peanuts, that wonderful show,
 The friends we have made and have valued so.
 We remember, too, with tear in eye,
 Six wonderful years at Walnut Hills High
